Long-standing Service to the Community by Cornell Scott – Hill Health Center Underscores Benefits of Integrated Care

New Haven, CT. — The Cornell Scott–Hill Health Center is proud to release “Care, Community, Connection” – a new long-form video highlighting the health center’s 43-year history of integrated care and quality service.

The video profiles the health center’s remarkable beginning in 1968 when the community came together to form the health center. The relationship between the health center and the community it serves is a unique connection and is a fundamental component of the community health center movement. This connection is featured extensively in the nine and half minute video.

Many members of the health center’s leadership team as well as individuals from various clinical areas share their perspective on the services, history, philosophy and culture of the center. The video also features Dr. Mario Garcia, Director of Health for the City of New Haven, who comments on the value of the health center to the residents of New Haven through increased access and lower cost.

The video is available for viewing on the Cornell Scott – Hill Health Center website and is also available on the health center’s YouTube Channel at: www.youtube.com/cshhc.
